

Project Title: Analog Temperature Monitoring & Automated Cooling System

The project focuses on designing and building a temperature monitoring system using a thermistor, operational amplifiers, and basic electronic components. The system will control a fan and buzzer based on preset temperature levels. The project will be implemented using hardware components only and will not include microcontrollers or software programming.

